Jesse Knights Takes a Hand

American Fork Mining District
Looks Prosperous Following
Visit of Knight's Men.

OTHER MINING NOTES

The visit of John Roundy, J. P. Creer, Chas. Reece and J. M. Jensen of "Uncle" Jesse Knight's mining advisers to American Fork Mining District last week, has resulted in a company being formed that will do much for the future development of this rich field. Sixteen claims on Mineral Flat, at the head of the canyon, about one mile north of Millar hill, extending a little over on the Alta side, have been secured by the Knight's people and with some local money men will begin next Tuesday with a good force of men to open up their property.

The articles of incorporation of the new company have not been filed as yet, but we are informed it will be a $1,000,000 company and that the treasury will not lack for funds to make the necessary development that will soon make a mine.

One of the amusing things in Jesse Knight's mining ventures, he has never made a failure and in all cases the men interested with him have become wealthy, and we predict the new company will be no exception to this rule.

Corydon W. Higgins, associate editor of the Salt Lake Mining Review, spent Monday and Tuesday in American Fork mining district. Mr. Higgins, although but a young man is old in his work, having passed fourteen of the twenty-three years of his life in newspaper work, and with his father, Will C. Higgins, who founded the Mining Review eight years ago, are recognized as the best posted men in the inter-mountain region when it comes to knowledge of mining districts.

On his trip to American Fork district, Mr. Higgins was accompanied by his faithful camera, and, providing the cloudy weather has not badly hampered the work of the machine, we can expect something interesting to read and well illustrated in a near issue of the Review. Mr. Higgins not only writes well, but he tells the truth and as a result the Salt Lake Mining Review is a recognized, news authority of the inter-mountain districts to people all over the United States. As he was in search of authentic information of the district's early history and any recent notes that might help him in his mission of it, we refrained from asking his opinion of the canyon as a mining field, preferring to wait for that expression through his own paper.

W. H. Young of Salt Lake, president of the Signet mine, which is located near Van's dugway in American Fork canyon, with the board of directors, of this city, made a visit to their property Sunday to investigate the recent report of their miners getting high grade ore. They found the mine looking very encouraging with a vein of ore 14 inches, that assayed about $50.00 per ton. They expect this vein to develop sufficiently large to put the property on a paying basis in the near future.

S. Osborn is superintending the work of getting out enough mining timber to last the Osborn company during the winter, when an extensive development work will be pushed in this promising property. It being the intention of the directors to let contracts for extending the tunnel in the Osborn and sinking the shaft in the Chicago. Scarcity of miners has been a drawback to the company during the past month, but as the harvest work will soon be through, it is thought there will be plenty of men to go at mining. The directors of the company expect to get ore in large bodies from the veins which have already carried values up to $90.00 per ton, but in too small quantities to begin shipping.

H. C. Johnson, president, and C. M.

Beck, vice-president of the Pacific, accompanied by George Haverkamp of Provo spent Saturday and Sunday at the Pacific property and other mines in the vicinity. They were pleased with the way the new air tunnel in the Blue Rock is progressing, it was then in 75 feet and going ahead at the rate of 6 feet each shift. The miners encountered sulphate ore and run on top of it for a distance of about thirty feet, when they passed above it in the natural course of the air tunnel. This ore is found in the property 250 feet from this point, which is such a big milling proposition. The ore carries some better lead values than the big body lower down, and while the miners have not encountered the carbonate bodies expected in their course, it is thought the ore will yet come in before they complete the necessary 300 feet to connect with the upraise run from the lower tunnel.

The last thing before going to press, we hear "Uncle" Jesse Knights will take over two more large groups of claims in American Fork canyon and incorporate them. "Knights" is a magic word in Utah mining, local stock is being called for from all over the country as soon as it is known he has taken hold in the district.

Interesting Letter From B. Y. U. False Reports Corrected

Provo, Sept. 27, 1907.
Editor The Citizen:

We the students of the Brigham Young University take the opportunity of spreading a few truths around to the people in outside towns. There have been false reports floating about concerning the accommodations of students who come to school. Some of them are not very anxious about an education, are easily discouraged and of course the first thing they think of is "home," the hack man is ordered and away they go with their trunks. They have given up at the first little obstacle which has come in their attempt to get settled.

It has been rumored that there are not enough boarding places to accommodate students. Why there are cries all over the city "Boarders Wanted." There is enough room for a thousand more students if necessary, as far as prices are concerned they are as reasonable as could be expected, under such conditions as are surrounding us.

Some have said that you could not get board and lodging for less than five dollars per week. This is not the case.

The highest price paid is four dollars for first class rooms and board near the University. The average price is three dollars and seventy-five cents. The farther the distance for walking, the cheaper the price.

The members of the Faculty have done all in their power to make the students comfortable and to provide for all needs. The city has been canvassed, every house, to find boarding places. We can plainly see it is no fault of the faculty's, some one has misrepresented them. Our worthy President has said that no student need go home for want of boarding place until the faculty are all living in tents. What more could we ask than this.

This year we have a greater number of able teachers than ever before in the history of the school, and all are here for the sole purpose of giving us a portion of their knowledge. We wish more of the young people would take advantage of this golden opportunity, for it certainly is one. There were altogether, enrolled the first week over eleven hundred and they are still entering every day. Our halls and rooms are filled with smiling faces and we hope to have many more with us. "There's always room for one more," so come join us if you can and we promise you a hearty welcome and great satisfaction if you have a desire for a good all-round education.

All of us hope to make the best of our time this year while in school and not let it be said of us, "Lost—between sunrise and sunset, sixty golden minutes, set with sixty diamond seconds. No reward is offered as they are lost forever."

Respectfully,
FERN CHIPMAN.

A school boy's composition on "The Editor," ran as follows: "The editor is one of the happiest beggars in the world. He can go to the circus in the afternoon and evening without paying a farthing, also inquests and hangings, he has free tickets to the theaters, gets wedding cake (?) sent to him and sometimes gets licked, but not often, as he can take it back in the next issue, which he generally does. While other folks have to go to bed early, the editor can sit up every night and see all that is going on."

ABOUT PRESCRIPTIONS

This word as defined in the dictionary means little to you compared with its relation when you are ill, or need medicine, then, filling prescriptions is a very important branch of the drug business.

The science of pharmacy has made great advancement of late years, and no druggist can best serve his patrons who ignores this fact, pure Drugs are very important, but be they ever so pure, a little careless handling may ruin their medicinal value.

Filling prescriptions is not merely mixing drugs, but involves a knowledge of the drug, its physical parts and chemical properties, doses, and various other points, obtained only by long study and practical experience; We have both.
